RARE RESPIRATORY DISEASES

II. INTERNATIONAL ERN LUNG PCD MEETING

6TH - 8TH APRIL 2025
Naples - ITALY

Bringing together scientists from across the world to share advances in Primary Ciliary Dyskinesia diagnosis, clinical research and care.

Preliminary Program

Rationale

Primary Ciliary Dyskinesia (PCD) is a rare genetic disorder with significant respiratory implications, affecting both pediatric and adult populations. The condition is primarily characterized by recurrent upper and lower respiratory tract infections, including frequent bronchitis and pneumonia, which, over time, may progress to chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and irreversible respiratory failure. Despite its clinical impact, the prevalence of PCD is underreported, as many patients remain undiagnosed due to variations in diagnostic accessibility and potential underrecognition of the disease itself.

The ERN-LUNG network, through its PCD-specific subgroup, plays a pivotal role in standardizing diagnostic approaches and treatment protocols, thereby improving patient outcomes. The network is actively involved in the development of clinical guidelines and the promotion of innovative therapeutic strategies.

This meeting aims to foster collaboration among experts in the field to advance the understanding of PCD, enhance diagnostic accuracy, and share best practices in treatment. Key objectives include:

- Discussing the latest advancements in diagnostic tools and techniques for PCD.
- Reviewing current treatment protocols and identifying areas for improvement.
- Exploring novel therapeutic approaches and clinical trials.
- Promoting international collaboration to harmonize standards of care and improve patient management globally.

Through these efforts, the congress seeks to drive progress in the clinical management of PCD and contribute to the development of more effective therapies for this challenging condition.
